

Due to the nature and allure of VOIP and Internet based data/voice transport technology, many businesses and individuals find these services better prices and more attractive than tradition phone services. By implementing / installing / or activating a wiretapping or listening requirement, the fledgling companies will be forced to absorb the cost or pass it onto their customers. By requiring wiretapping for these companies, It is my opinion that the goverment or agency defray these costs for an amount of time until the market can support itself so these companies will not go under due to high wiretapping costs.

The nature of "Free Enterprise" did not require that a home based sheep grower didn't have to pay for some government agent to come to his house and inspect his sheep for some form of "secret sheep".

If you are placing wiretapping, keep the costs to your agency.
